SitePal in the News

New York Enterprise Report names SitePal One of the Cool New Tech Tools

"Getting a visitor to your website is only the first step in e-commerce. Imagine if your visitors had a speaking guide to give them a gentle nudge (or a huge shove) toward what you wanted them to do on your site. Thousands of companies have found it useful to have an avatar (an animated talking head) on their websites."

Search Guru Blogs With SitePal

Search Engine Guru Uses SitePal to Enhance Blog

Search guru Barry Schwartz, winner of the Best "Blog on Search Marketing" award from MarketingSherpa recently implemented a custom SitePal model into his newest blog to enhance user interactivity.

Barry's new Blog "Cartoon Barry" has a collection of stories from Barry Schwartz's daily life. As well as search engine news coverage and business topics. He currently uses the SitePal character to give daily recaps of search engine news he's covered.

SitePal Tip

Editing Existing Text To Speech Audio

SitePal's Text-to-Speech service offers SitePal user's a convenient means to update their SitePal Scene's audio on a daily basis. Frequent updates of your Scene's audio keeps your website fresh with useful information for frequent visitors.

Many customers don't realize that Text-to-Speech audio can be edited from the original scripts. To edit an existing Text-To-Speech audio:

- Open the SitePal Scene Editor
- Select the "Audio Library" from left hand library panel
- Find the TTS message you want to edit and click twice (once to preview, and once to edit) on the audio's entry in the audio library.
- The "Add New Audio" dialogue will appear with your original script. Edit your script and either "Preview" or "Save".
