How American TESOL turns "browsers into believers" with SitePal

American TESOL drives Student Conversion Rates with SitePal

American TESOL is an internationally recognized English teacher training program that supports its graduates in finding a teaching job in the country of their choice.

A SitePal talking character is used to greet people, explain their service, and most importantly engage people to contact them for more information. Read more about it in the case study (PDF).

"The SitePal characters have added the friendly face we were looking for on the site. Not only do they help to convey important information about who we are, but they've also helped us turn browsers into believers and ultimately clients and students. We would definitely recommend SitePal for any small business looking to separate itself from the rest of the pack." Jonathan Lazarus, The American TESOL Institute

SitePal Tip : Consecutive Audio Playback

Want to have a few separate audios played consecutively?

We often get asked questions like this by users like you on the Oddcast Forums. Well, it's not only possible, it's easy!

For example, if you have three files named "one," "two" and "three," and you want to play them consecutively, you could put something like this in the head of your page:

Code:

<script language="javascript"> function vh_sceneLoaded(){ sayAudio('one');
  sayAudio('two');
  sayAudio('three');
</script>
```
